THE EVENING STAR.

THURSDAY September 2, 1880. LETTER FROM CAPE MAY. A NORTHEASTER-A POOR SEASON-THE CAUSE OF

FAILURE-THE EATHERS-THE DOGS-THE NOS-

QUITO WAR-THE OPENING AND CLOSE-PER-SONAL, ETC. [Correspondence of The Evening Star.] CAPE MAY, August 31. The weather bureau turned on a blast from the north pole yesterday and cut the tail of the season in twain. The Stockton, the last and the largest of the hotels, closed to-day. The Congress declined to receive guests a week ago, but kept the few on hand until Friday last. when it closed. Even the hotels that remain open during the winter have but few guests. While the season has been a very successful one in most every quarter, it has been a dismal failure here. It is a short one at the best compared with other places, but when lengthened with pleasant weather it falls to attract. On Sunday when the heat was in the nineties in the cities the day was bright and cool here, the bathing excellent, and yet there were not a dozen hotel arrivals. In former times there were as high as five hundred. A combination of circumstances has contributed to depress and deplete Cape May. This season has been a very rainy one. For ten days it rained incessantly, and when the weather cleared the mosquitoes came in clouds. People stood them till the trains lert, and the town has not recovered from the exodus of its gaests in the height of the season. But there are other reasons why Cape May has not been successful this summer, and why it may not be successful this summer. the seasons hereafter. It has not met the spirit of competition that has sprung up all along the Long Island and Jersey coasts It has relied on its magnificent bath-ing beach, and added no other at-tractions. The result is that people have gone to the new places and left the old ones to decay. The Philadelphia Times to-day takes this view of the situation and very sensibly says that the Cape May people have traded too long apon what has been in the past and what they mean to have in the future. It says "It is time now to leave off promising and substitute per-formance. They need, in the first place, to per-fect their system of drainage. They need to clean up their streets and mend their fences and sidewalks: to bring soil and plant grass and flowers and make the place presentable. They need to build the pler that they began to build about twenty years ago. And they need to improve their hotels, not by adding more wooden barracks, but by substituting substantial structures of brick and mortar, which shall be durable and secure and dry and comforta-ble. They need, in short, to look at what has been done elsewhere and profit by the example bringing Cape May abreast of modern progress. This means that they must spend money, liberally and wisely. If they do not, they must expect to lose what they have already invested, for without some such effort the place must inevitably fall farther and farther behind." The article complains also of the arrangement of the bathing houses, which is a little unjust. Since the fire the bathing facilities are superfor to any other place on the coast. The hotels, too, have been better kept this year. I hear nothing but praise in that direction. The Messrs, Crump, of Philadelphia, took Congress Hall, which last year had a very bad reputation and brought it up to a first-class house in all respects. The Stockton was always in the front rank, and outside of Coney Island is the finest hotel on the coast.

THE COTTAGERS AND THE BATHERS. Although the hotels have closed, all of the cottage population remains, and at bathing time there are still several hundred people left for the : urf. The northeast storm does not interfere | semetimes injured in strill with the bathing. The air is chilly, but the water is almost tepid, while the breakers come rolling in high and fast with "the multitudinous music of a thousand ages gone." The sights on the sands and in the surf increase with the at surdities of each year's fashlons. Everybody gets the benefit of the new mania for stockings. The ladies who would hardly exhibit the size of their slippers on the plazzas of the Stockton un-blushingly show off the full length of the new colors in the bath. The sight is a shapely one, and evil only to him, doubtless, who evil thinks There have been no accidents this season and but few persons rescued from the breakers. This is mainly attributable to the absence of the good swimmers (for they venture out and cannot get back) and to the warning notice posted in every bath room for the benefit of the new comers. There is so much shouting and frolicing in the water that it is difficult to detect an earnest appeal for assistance. A rhymer has put it pretty well this way:

"Ch, take me in! oh, take me in!"
Affriguted, did she shout. The breakers dread had turned her head the meant, "Oh, take me out!"

Forgive who can the cruel man Who heard that frightened shout,
And through the din cried out, 'Swim in!"
Let should have cried, 'Swim out!"

THE DOGS. The new fashions in dogs continue to increase- at least the dogs increase. Last summer the English pug with a black battered nose was the rage, and he holds his own quite well among the childless votaries of fashion. This year I notice a new breed with which I am not familiar, but it seems to answer every purpose as well as the pug. These pet brutes sleep in their mistresses laps and are frequently fed from the same table though Col. Duffy, the manager of the Stockton, has not yielded to the demand for "high chairs" for the little pets. On the contrary, he has tried to get rid of them by charging from seven to ten dollars a week for their board, which, to his great surprise, has been paid in every instance. sons of pugs seem to enjoy it very much, especially when they are tied with a blue ribbon to the chair of their mistress in the dining hall at meal hours. The guests who have no dogs stand this very well, but when it comes to the affectionate part they feel very much as they did on board of Col. Young's yacht the other day when she was endeavoring to make the Breakwater in a chopping sea—they want to be somewhere else! A lady kissed her pug on the plazza yesterday not only once but twice and thrice, and declared that he was her "little darling, pugzy wugzy—so he was." This is a com-mon thing, but I have not seen it in print. Next year Duffy says he proposes to add an-other cipher to the notice on the Stockton bulletin, so that it will read: "Dog's board $100 per week for the season of 'S1!"

THE MOSQUITO WAR. Cape May has two daily papers during the season-The Ware and The Star, and the way they fight each other in type would make the famous Eatonsville Gazette controversy respectable. If they lived south of the Potomac one or both would have long since perished. The present trouble arose over the editor of The Wave "giving away Cape May" (I quote) by mentioning the fact that there were mosquitoes at a certain concert. The editor of The Wave says that the editor of The Star is "supersensitive," and tries to make The Wave man out "a willful liar and a doer of injustice," and goes on to show that The Star first "gave away of May on the mosquitoes." It says: "This attempt at covering up the mosquitoes with the mantle of silence has long since played out. The Daily Star was the first paper to give away the fact of the presence of great swarms of mosquitoes at Cape May, and we didn't go out of our way to say that the 'assertion is not correct.'" Covering up the mosquitoes with a mantle of silence, or anything else, is good! or attempting to suppress their presence by not mentioning them in type while people were being peppered by them is better! The Star man replies to this in the most violent epithets, the mildest of which is that The Wave man is "asinine" and an ass, and so on to the end. It is hard to say who has the best of it, but "the doer of injustice" holds up his epd very well. Both papers cease their daily issues to-day and the contest is transferred to their weekiles.

THE OPENING-THE HEIGHTH-THE END. It is a good thing to see a season open, with the hotel proprietor shaking hands with every one who gets out of the omnibus, and his face beam over the dollars he expects to roll in before the August tides. It is a good thing to see a season at its height and sleep on a cot in the wash-room, at the rate of four dollars a day, not including extras; but it is a better thing to see the closing days of the season, when you can get a "parlor with an ocean front," with the privilege of occupying one hundred and eightyone other rooms, all "with ocean fronts," and on the same floor; to hear the unbroken murmur of the ocean at night, and the wind whistle through the blinds and around the corners and down the porticoes of a vast and almost tenantless hotel; or when the clouds lift and the sea runs down, to watch the stately ships come out from their haven under the Delaware shore, and fleck the ocean blue in the spanking breeze that comes in from the southward, to be tald that "this is the last meal, sah," and that everything is "out" but yourself, that the band went up this morning and that your baggage was already down for the train this evening—in short to feel that it is your time to go home. Yet September is the most delightful month at the sea-shore, after a few days of storm are passed, which clear the atmosphere, render the air mild, and actually improve the temperature of the surf for batking.

There are quite a number of Washington'ans here in cottages. Among them Dr. G. W. Pop 2, Richard Taylor, James R. Young and family, French Queen, Mrs. Howells and Mrs. Mechlin (of Georgetown) and others.

A telegram received here to-day from San Francisco states that Mrs. John Russell Young is so ill that her recovery is doubtful. She was a Miss Fitzpatrick, of Capitol Hill, and spent last winter in Washington.

Impregnable Evergreen Hedges.

An evergreen hedge, kept in proper order, is an ornament throughout the whole year. But being destitute of thorns, it is easily broken through. One may be easily made however, with thorns that will stop any intruder, in the following way: When the hedge, after cutting back, is about twenty inches high, set upright stakes or small posts along to its centre about twenty feet apart. On these posts stretch a well galvanized barbod wire, resting on the top of the hedge. The evergreens will grow up and around it, and keep it in its place. In one or two years more, when the top has been cut thirty inches or more in height, stretch another barbed wire. The growth will secure this as before. A third wire may not be necessary, but it would complete a strong barrier. As the evergreens become stouter, they will hold the wires from ever becoming displaced, and no man, boy or quadruped will desire to pass such a hedge. Any number of wires may be used if special strength is required. The expense of such a barrier will be moderate, and the only care will be to keep the trees cut back annually to a moderate extent, or triennially more largely. It will possess an important advantage over common barbed wire fences, since by their invisible nature animals are The only perfect way by which a barbed wire can be placed in a hedge is by allowing it to grow up around it. Norway spruce is the strengest grower, but bemlock and arbor vitae may also be made perfect by the barbed wire. The buck-thorn, the only fault of which is want of strength, may be rendered secure in this way .- Country Gentleman.

TERRIFIC COLLIERY EXPLOSION. - Yesterday afternoon, at half-past four o'clock, a short time before the men engaged justde the Thos. Colliery mine, at Shenaudoah, Va., had intended quitting work, an explosion of carburetted hydrogen took place, which proved terriflic in its results. This is the colliery which for some time past has been burning, and work in effort to extin-guish it has been actively going on. The cir-cumstances connected with the explosion are as follows: A party of men were engaged in building a battery across the gangway, which was to be a supplement to several other constructions of a similar nature, when the ex-plosive gas, unknown to them, began leaking through the crevices of the coal, and, gathering rapidly, was ignited by their lamps and ex-ploded with great violence. The force of the blast can be best estimated when it is stated that the men were blown around the gaugway like straws, and that the door of the travelling way on the surface was shivered to atoms Workmen engaged around the mines heard the concussion. The news of the event spread rapidly, and in less than anhour after the occurrence 2.000 men, women and children were on the scene. As yet nobody knew the extent of the damage, and wifes and mothers whose husbands and sons were in the mines screamed and tore their hair with grief. A party of volun-teers descended into the mine, and in a short time afterward returned with two of the men in the mine, both or whom were unconscious. They were Superintendent Hemingray and David Linkham. After these George Ormrod, assistant superintendent, and Thomas Baird, inside boss, was bought up. The former escaped with a gash in the chin and a fracture of the ankle. The latter was unconscious. Mosts, Beck and John Jones were next brought to the surface. The body of Simon Gregory, assistant boss, cannot be found not with standing the fact that persistent search is being made for it. A number of physicians were in attend. ance on the surface and in a few hours Hemingray and Linkham were bought to consciousness. Gregory is undoubtedly dead, and it is expected his body will not be tound before to-morrow. The water is up on the batteries, which greatly impedes the men in their search. LABORERS ON A STRIKE.-The laborers in all the cotton presses at New Orleans are on a strike for an advance in wages. The cotton press proprietors say the strike is the result of efforts on the part of certain agitators to force extreme prices, materially in excess of what has heretofore been paid. It is stated that some of these laborers have been paid as high as $50 per week, though the nominal wages have been $50 to $60 per month, and the proprietors would willingly pay $60 per month to competent laborers and guarantee steady employment.
